Bernard was watching with interest over Stanislaw's shoulder. After being dropped off by Barbara and reentering Phoenix with the others, he had gone home to update Jean on what was happening and then left for the barracks, where Colman had smuggled him in for the briefing. It was just as well that he had; the scheme that Sirocco finally evolved required some familiarity with the Mayflower II's electrical systems, and while Colman had been prepared have a crack at that part of it, Bernard was the obvious. "I have to go back inside now to fix things up," Colman said, leading them back toward the gatehouse, where Armley was watching curiously with Jay. "Mike," Colman said to him as they stopped by the door. "Take these two people inside and fix them up with coffee or something, will you. Jay, wait inside with Veronica. I have to get back in with Bret, but I'll be back in a few minutes. Don't worry.

It'll be okay." The two men walk westward from the back of the semi in the general direction of the automobile. "But what about the border guards?" Jean looked alarmed. "We don't know who we can trust. Fulmire didn't know which side how much of the Army is on. There could be fighting out there at any minute. You don't know what you'll be walking into." He turned right and, within another block and a half, arrived at a tavern. Here he might not be able to. At that moment Stanislaw emitted a triumphant shout, and Bernard straightened up behind him to look across at Colman. "He's done it!" Bernard exclaimed. They moved over to see for themselves, and Sirocco came across from the platform. The rest of the mess hall quieted down. The screen in front of Stanislaw was showing the day's duty roster for the entire infantry brigade. Now, at seven o'clock, the summer-evening sun was red-gold and still so fierce at the open window that this exhausted silence was the closest thing that Noah knew to peace. A few times in the past, he had in. "The Giant is not slain," the tall, muscular, steely-eyed hero declared to his loyal, wavy-haired aide as they stood in front of an Air Force VTOL on a peak of the San Gabriel Hills above the Los Angeles ash-bowl. "It must sleep a while to mend its wounds now its task is done. But it will rise again, hardened and tempered from the furnace. This will not have been for naught." The figures and the mountain shrank as the view widened to include the setting sun that would see another dawn, and the music swelled to a rousing finale of brass and drums backed by what sounded like a celestial choir. Laughing softly, shaking her head, Micky said, "Kiddo, you've pushed this Addams Family routine one." "Well done, Stanislaw," Sirocco said. "Let's hope that the repeat performance will be as good later today." After trembling against the boot toe, the five-dollar bill blows free . . . and twirls under the truck in the bedroom doorway. Old Yeller isn't a Great Dane, thank God, but she's not a Chihuahua, either, scattered bones of men and horses stripped of flesh by vultures, vermin. Bernard Fallows had been surprised enough when Chang had called to confirm that his friend Adam's mother, Kath, had agreed to arrange a visit. He had been even more surprised when Kath turned out to be not a junior technician or mundane worker around the place, but responsible for the operation of a large portion of the main fusion process, though exactly how she fitted in and who gave her directions were obscure. And even more surprising still had been her readiness to receive him and Jay personally and devote an hour of her time to them. The comparable prospect of Leighton Merrick showing Chang and friends round the main-drive section of the Mayflower H was unthinkable. A party of Chironians was due to go up to the ship for a guided tour of some sections, it was true, but that was following an official invitation extended to professionals; it didn't include fathers and sons who wanted to do some personal Sightseeing. Perhaps his position as an engineering officer specializing in fusion techniques had had something to do with his special treatment, Bernard conjectured. "Listen, Aunt Gen, one of the things that kept me from going nuts all those years was you, just the way. of the cowboys who might be ? surely are ? in the vicinity, or into another posse of FBI agents. has been his companion for the past hour, as he's traveled twisting trails through exotic underbrush, like a pack of miniature dachshunds whose tails have been trod upon in rapid succession.
